

EWI (Executive Women International) is an organization committed to helping single mothers go back to school, get an education and make a living for their families. This hit home with me as I was a single mom struggling years ago to raise my two children. It is comprised of wonderful, intelligent women who are professionally confident in themselves and who are personable in forming close friendships. EWI promotes excellence in professional involvement within the community, organization and personal careers. The membership thrives on individuals supporting each other and can be relied upon to help with anything needed in careers or personal lives. EWI excels in creating an atmosphere of confidence and self assurance for each and every member. Because of this, a wonderful network of each business organization is immediately available to meet almost any issue arising for a member. I have always said, "it is not what you know but who you know" and I firmly believe that. Having said that, I truly believe that the greatest asset coming out of the organization is friendship. We are an organization whose voice is easily heard within the Chattanooga community giving scholarships to UTC and Chattanooga State and supporting the Head Start Reading Rally. We have just begun to grow and I believe that we will continue to grow as more and more women grow in their work environment and need to network with other business professionals.
